Background Investigations

Many police officer applicants compete through lengthy testing processes, only to find out after several months that their personal history makes them unemployable as police officers. While it is impossible to cover every example here, the Covina Police Department officers information below for potential applicants to consider before applying.

The 27 page PHS requires applicants to fully disclose relatives and references, job history, legal, financial, driving history and more. Applicants will also be required to provide documents in support of their PHS claims, such as sealed school transcripts. Background Investigators interview candidates, references, co-workers, supervisors, neighbors and acquaintances among others. Candidates are required to submit to and pass a polygraph exam as part of the investigation. The Chief of Police reviews all candidate background investigation files before making a decision as to whether or not to accommodate a Chief's Interview. The Chief of Police is the appointing authority for all positions.

If you are considering applying for a position at the Covina Police Department, you are encouraged to review the PHS. Additional inquiries regarding background investigations can be submitted via email to Professional Standards Sergeant Dan Regan at dregan@covinaca.gov.
